EU NEWS

Brexit

Theresa May has resigned from her position as British Prime Minister. The announcement took place on May 24th after much speculation and the lack of a Brexit deal to be supported in Parliament. The resignation triggers a Tory leadership race for the next leader who will be crucial in the Brexit developments in upcoming months. While the new leader may try to initiate negotiations once again, the EU27 have previously stated they do not intend to restart or enter into any new dialogue. Mrs May will continue to fulfill her responsibilities until another leader is chosen.

European Elections

The European Elections were held May 23 to May 26 and included the UK as no exit deal had been finalised. Turnout for the elections across the 28 member states were at improved levels to the previous election with a total of 50.95%. The results have seen a shift in the make-up of parties however the Eurosceptic movement did not see a mass rise but rather a consolidation of the 2014 results. The domination of the two parties EPP and S&D has diminished somewhat with the two parties not able to form an absolute majority alone. It is likely they will join forces to form a new pro-european majority with the Greens and the ALDE. For further breakdown of results, follow the below link.

Slovakia

Slovakia has elected its first female president in Zuzana Caputova. The presidential role is primarily ceremonial with the prime minister being the dominant politician overseeing the country's affairs. Caputova, however in her role as president, is the commander in chief of the armed forces, can appoint top judges and has blocking powers in parliament.

Italy

Italy has been urged by the French and German finance ministers to tighten its public finances and to honour its previous commitments to reduce debt. This follows a warning from the European Commission that Italy was in breach of the bloc's rule.

Czech Republic

Demonstrations were held June 4 to demand the resignation of Czech Prime Minister Andrej Babis who is suspected of embezzling European subsidies. Babis has rejected an audit and has labelled claims of a conflict of interest as an attack on the Czech Republic.
